SOURCE

No aircraft were observed at the Brandenburg-Arado (L 53/2 23) airfield. The field was unguarded. While cycling along the runway, it was determined that it was 1,600 meters long and inclined to one side. Two underground tanks on the western edge of the airfield, each of about 50,000 liter capacity, were dug out ready for transportation.

Comments:

The report confirms previous observations by other sources according to which the field is no longer occupied by an air unit. Another source reported on 22 February 1950 that tanks and guns were stored in the hangars. From the information that the field is unguarded it is assumed that no army unit is stationed there. Other sources confirmed that the fuel containers were dug out.
